ABSTRACT

An online health portal acts as a repository for all useful information about a certain health field such as journals, articles, links, videos, images and other data that may be useful to certain users who are in need or are interested in that certain health field. The Online Home Remedy and First Aid Portal is an online health portal that deals with the field of home remedies and first aid treatment.

Despite the rapid pace of developments in technology and its effect on helping people in various ways, there are no existing central resources for first aid and home remedies in the Philippines. The University of the Philippines Manila's status as one of the country's leading health resource can give credence to a university-sponsored online health portal.

The Online Home Remedy and First Aid Portal aims to disseminate credible health information about all the various health domains, specifically regarding home remedies and first aid, answer frequently asked questions, schedule events or seminars and moderate messages and discussions by the users.

The Online Home Remedy and First Aid Portal is a web based system which is a useful tool in the education of people about the topic of home remedies, emergency care and first aid.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. Introduction

A. Background of the Study

The rapid rise of technology in our world today has given way to many different conveniences for people. Studies have shown that computer usage has risen over the last few years [1]. The Internet specifically has significantly changed our lives. Vast amounts of information are now freely available to those who require it. This makes the Internet a powerful aid and tool that everyone should learn utilize fully. Technology has also contributed a lot in the field of Health Informatics, and now, there are many ways ordinary people can access information about health and safety in general than ever before.

Treatment is defined as the administration or application of remedies to a patient for a disease or injury [2]. Home treatment then means treatments at home. First Aid is defined as Emergency treatment administered to an injured or sick person before professional medical care is available [3]. Unfortunately, studies have shown that there are many people who do not know what to do in emergencies like accidents or other common illnesses [4]. They tend to panic because they lack the knowledge of what they are supposed to do. This poses a serious problem, because lack of proper first aid could cause complications and make things much worse than they already are. An online resource center for the topic of first aid, home remedies and emergency care helps in solving this problem.

B. Statement of the Problem

Although there are many sites, blogs, and databases that cover home remedies, first aid and emergency medicine, the problem is that there is no central resource for this topic in the Philippines. There is a lack of online materials and information about this topic in our local setting that people can access when they need it.

As the designated Health Sciences Center of the Philippines, the University of the Philippines Manila contributes to achieving better health for Filipinos through relevant and excellent teaching, research, patient care and other community programs and services. An online repository for home remedies, first aid and emergency care is in line with the university's mission and standing as the leading institution for the health sciences in the Philippines.

C. Objectives of the Study

To create a user-friendly and intuitive online system with these functionalities:

The Doctors/Content Experts from the University of the Philippines Manila can:

1. Post new information (articles, videos, pictures, etc) about home remedies, first aid and emergency care for selected illnesses in his/her own domain category

2. Update the existing articles, videos, pictures, etc in his/her own domain category

3. Post and update FAQs (Frequently Asked Questions) on a dedicated FAQ page for his/her own category

4. Provide news, links, and other useful information about home remedies, first aid and emergency care in his/her own domain category

5. Post and update events like seminars, symposia, public lectures and other activities that could help in raising awareness and health promotion

6. Moderate the message board for his/her own domain category

7. Edit profile information including password

The Guests/Anonymous Users of the system can:

1. View the system's information for helpful articles, multimedia like images, videos, animations, etc about home remedies, first aid and emergency care for common illnesses

2. Create an account so that they can be registered to join the system's online message board

3. Update their account and profile including password

4. Post messages in the online forum about various topics related to home remedies, first aid and emergency care for common illnesses

The Systems Administrator can:

1. Update all user accounts

2. Manage system files

D. Significance of the Study

This project could potentially be the central online resource for home remedy, emergency care and first aid information. It is an accessible and intuitive site for users that makes it easier for them to get the information that they are looking for. This results in the people being more educated about emergency medicine, and it is good to raise awareness about this topic. Another advantage is that more knowledge of this topic results in better prevention methods of possible accidents and illnesses.

Awareness of home remedies, emergency care and first aid results in some excellent outcomes. First, hospital consultations are lessened because users know when illnesses and injuries are self-manageable. This saves time and cost for the users. In direct relation to this, the hospitals are also freed from potential patients if the users opt to treat injuries and illnesses themselves if they decide that they can manage said injuries and illnesses. This gives way to hospitals focusing more on the patients that need urgent medical attention.

Most online resources for home remedies, emergency care and first aid are text-based and are somewhat tedious to read, although some of them have a couple of graphic aids posted occasionally. This project has the distinguishing feature of including multimedia. Graphical representations are sometimes more helpful than only text, and this gives this system the edge it needs over text-based first aid resources.

E. Scope and Limitations

These are the Scope and Limitations of this project:

1. Only affiliated doctors/health experts with the University of the Philippines Manila can be a designated domain expert

2. There can be only one domain expert per category of injury/illness so as to avoid conflicting opinions

3. There are various categories of injuries and ailments including but not limited to wounds, burns, bites, poisoning, fevers, colds, and other common illnesses

4. The only injuries and illnesses that are covered by the system are those that can be managed at home and do not require urgent medical assistance

5. These designated domain experts are the ones who serve as the moderator for the message board of his/her own domain category. As such, posting for approval of user messages is subject to their discretion

6. The posting of scheduled events and activities is left to the domain experts' discretion

7. All anonymous users may join the online forum provided that they follow forum rules as given by the moderators

8. Pictures to be uploaded alongside articles are only limited to file formats that can be displayed on most browsers including but not limited to .jpeg, .gif, .png, etc

9. Videos to be uploaded alongside articles should be uploaded to video sites that have videos that are embeddable. Some video sites that have this feature are YouTube, DailyMotion, Google Video, etc

II. Review of Related Literature

The topic of first aid, health informatics information systems and multimedia integration has been discussed in many journals especially in recent times. Many of these journals focus on providing services and information to the population.

In a study by J. Whitaker, et.al, they discussed about the extent of first aid qualifications and knowledge among team officials among non-elite youth sport in England [5]. Lack of knowledge about first aid has always been a problem for the population. Although the results looked somewhat promising with 80% of respondents having an up to date first aid certificate, only 57% and 41% respectively answered the "collapsed player" and "choking player" scenario correctly.

Entitled "Knowledge of first aid measures of avulsion and replantation of teeth in Nigerian school children," this journal discussed about the lack of knowledge in first aid of children in Nigeria, specifically about dental avulsions. Shocking results show that of the children surveyed, 39.2% had experienced dental trauma in the past and 62.8% had never received information on first-aid on dental trauma [6].

Directly related to knowledge of first aid, another important topic is knowledge and attitude about safety and prevention as opposed to treatment. B. Hersche & O. C. Wenker discusses about Risk Assessment. They define risk management as handling the risks and dangers threatening our safety and security and the measures that ensures safety and optimize security [7].

There have been some proposals of projects pertaining to first aid. Among these is the First Aid Station or FAS. The article mainly concerns itself about mass accidents where there are many patients involved [8]. The problem is that with most current setups, it's a principle not to help the patient as quick as possible but to take him to hospital in the best possible condition and thus to enhance the chance of survival during transportation. Unfortunately, it is difficult for this method to be efficient with every situation, and that is what the proposed FAS intends to remedy.

The Casualty Handling System or CHSTM is also a proposed project to help improve first aid. Basically, it works as a companion for FAS and is made for an easy and quick identification system for a great number of patients [9]. It proposed a system where patients are swiftly organized and labeled with as much information as possible without losing time. Some of these information include: a rough diagnosis, sorting information, medical messages, hospital assignment, and ambulance assignment. This system would also be ideal for mass accidents with a large number of patients involved.

G. Eysenbach's study reviews the quality of health information and services for the public on the Internet [10]. Fortunately, the results of the study show that there is little evidence that health information found on the Internet is worse than health information in traditional media. This bodes well for anyone who wants to gain information about health informatics on the Internet.

Walther JB et.al, have also discussed the topic of health information in the Internet. In their study entitled "Attributes of Interactive Online Health Information Systems," they list down the important attributes that are usually associated with online health information systems [11]. Among these are: interactivity, presence, homophily, social distance, anonymity/privacy, and interaction management. They also discuss about the effects of having these attributes like learning, social influence, and coping.

EZ Kontos et.al, discuss about the barriers that stop the adoption of the Internet as a widespread source of information for health [12]. They focused the study on the urban novice computer users of lower social economic position. The results from their study show that some major barriers to Internet use are time constraints and family conflict over computer usage.

In the topic of multimedia integration, Diefenbach MA & Butz BP has made some contributions in the field of health information. Their study's aim was to introduce the development and evaluation of an interactive multimedia-education software program for patients diagnosed with localized prostate cancer [13]. The results were successful. According to the test groups, the approach they proposed to use multimedia as a tool for health information was valid and they even suggested some improvements and additions for the user interface.

A novel idea for multimedia integration in online health information is the development of a bandwidth usage index. This would provide a practical method to gauge the extent to which websites can successfully be used within different Internet access scenarios like cable, DSL and dial-up [14]. In this study, the results show that the bandwidth usage index represents a practical tool that can help developers and researchers to measure the bandwidth requirements of their websites as well as to evaluate the feasibility of certain website designs in terms of specific use cases.

For the local setting, a research paper by AR DeLeon entitled "A Study of the Public Education Domain of the Philippine Mental Health Association" assesses the public education domain (prevention education information services) of the Philippine Mental Health Association (PMHA) [15]. The findings were that since there is no coherent database on public education and information services on mental health in the country, an information system is proposed for collecting and reporting mental health information. In the end, the study concluded that annual campaigns for public education and awareness for mental health by the PMHA have a nation wide coverage, but there is no feedback mechanism in place to assess the delivery and effectiveness of the education information programs.

III. Conceptual Framework

1. Home Remedy/First Aid/Emergency Care

Knowledge of these three topics is vital to our everyday life. Remedy is defined in the dictionary as something that consistently helps treat or cure a disease [16]. Home Remedy then means applying said cure or treatment at home. First Aid, however, is defined as simple emergency medical care procedures intended for lay rescuers to perform before emergency medical professionals are available [3]. The difference between the two is that First Aid denotes that professional medical care is needed, while home remedies do not. Lastly, Emergency Care, or Prehospital Care, is also different from the two because medical professionals like paramedics or other emergency personnel deliver professional emergency care to the patient before he/she reaches the hospital [17].

2. Medical Informatics

Medical Informatics, otherwise known as Health Informatics, is an emerging discipline that has been defined as the study, invention, and implementation of structures and algorithms to improve communication, understanding and management of medical information [18].

Medical Informatics is where Information Technology, Computer Science and Health Science converge. The field of Medical Informatics deals with all the necessary resources, methods, devices and others needed for the optimization of acquisition, storage, retrieval, and use of information in health and biomedicine.

3. Database Management Systems (DBMS)

A Database Management System (or a DBMS) is a set of computer programs that facilitate the creation, maintenance and usage of a database system in a computer platform for all types of users [19].

Database Management Systems require a data modeling language. These data modeling languages are used to define the schema of each database hosted in the DBMS, according to the DBMS database model. The most commonly used types of data models are:

- hierarchal model

- network model

- object-oriented model

- relational model

The Online Home Remedy Center for Self-Manageable Injuries and Common Illnesses utilizes the relational data modeling language for its DBMS.

3.1 Relational Database

A relational database is a database wherein the collection of data is organized as a set of formally described tables from which data can be accessed or reassembled in many different ways without having to reorganize the tables [20]. A DBMS relational model for database management is mainly based on first-order predicate logic. Basically, it is about describing a database as a collection of predicates over a finite set of predicate variables and describing constraints on the possible values and combinations of values. The main purpose for this model is for us to provide a declarative method for specifying data and queries, or in other words, we state directly what the information in the database is, what information we need from the database, and in doing so, we let the database management system software take care of the data storage and retrieval involved [21].

4. PHP (Hypertext Preprocessor)

PHP, or Hypertext Preprocessor, is an HTML-embedded scripting language mainly implemented for dynamic web pages [22]. Because of its wide reach and popularity, the PHP scripting language has attracted the development of many frameworks that provide building blocks and a design structure to promote rapid application development (RAD).

4.1 CakePHP

CakePHP is an open-source PHP framework that is used for web applications. The framework makes it much easier to interface with the database using the active record pattern [23]. The active record pattern is a design pattern that is usually associated with relational databases. Another distinctive feature of CakePHP is that it encourages the use of the Model-View-Controller (MVC) architectural pattern. The MVC is an architectural pattern that isolates business logic, from input and presentation, permitting the separation of development, testing and maintenance of the three [24].

4.2 SMF (Simple Machines Forum)

Simple Machines Forum (SMF) is a free, professional grade package that allows you to set up your own online message board community. It is designed for maximum interaction with the website and the message board.

SMF is written in the popular language PHP and uses a MySQL database. It is designed to provide you with all the features you need from a bulletin board while having an absolute minimal impact on the resources of the server [25].

	user_id	varcha r	Foreign Key, user id of the event poster created	dateti me	Date time the event entry was created modified	dateti me	Date time the event entry was last modified
	domain	varcha r	Domain field of the event

Users – table for the system's users

Table	Data Field	Data Type	Description
Users	id	int	Primary Key, unique identifier
	name	varcha r	Full name of user
	username	varcha r	Username used for logging in email	varcha r	E-mail adress of user
	password	varcha r	Password of user (encrypted in the database)
	domain	varcha r	Domain field of the user (optional)
	profile	varcha r	Profile description for the user
	group_id	int	Integer value to determine the usergroup

Search_Index – table used for indexing word tags in the articles for the search function

Table	Data Field	Data Type	Description
Search_In dex	id	Int	Primary Key, unique identifier
	assosciation_ key	Int	Integer value to assosciate index with model ID model	varchar	The domain in which the search function is created for data	longtex t	Search tags for the index
	created	datetim e	Date time the index was created modified	datetim	Date time the index was last modified

V. Technical Architecture

The Online Home Remedy Center is a web-based system with client-server architecture. Apache web server and XAMPP 1.8.1 (MySQL database) are required in the part of the administrator because they need to have direct access to the system database. It is intended that the system runs in any platform as long as an Internet browser is present.

As a web based system, the scripting language used is PHP (version 5.2.6), with the CakePHP framework implemented (version 1.2.6), JavaScript, HTML and CSS.

Model-View-Controller

The Model-View-Controller or MVC is an architectural pattern that is used by the PHP framework CakePHP. Applications are commonly split into different layers for separate components. Usually, these are the user interface/presentation, business logic and data access. In MVC the presentation layer is further separated into Model, View and Controller, resulting in three layers [24].

29

The Model consists of the actual content in the application, which is often stored in the database or in XML nodes, and the business rules that transform that content based on user actions.

The View represents the user interface, which is the actual HTML or XHTML page, while the controller is the code that gathers dynamic data and generates the content within the HTML or XHTML

The user interacts with the user interface in some way (for example, presses a mouse button.)

The user interface waits for further user interactions, which restarts the cycle.

The controller handles the input event from the user interface, often via a registered handler or callback.

A view uses the model indirectly to generate an appropriate user interface (for example, the view lists the user's account profile).

The controller notifies the model of the user action, possibly resulting in a change in the model's state. (for example, the controller updates the user's account information)

VI. Results

The Online Home Remedy Center and First Aid Portal's homepage is shown on the figure below. As you can see, all the sections of the website are clearly described so that there is minimal confusion as to where users need to go. It was designed with user-friendliness in mind.

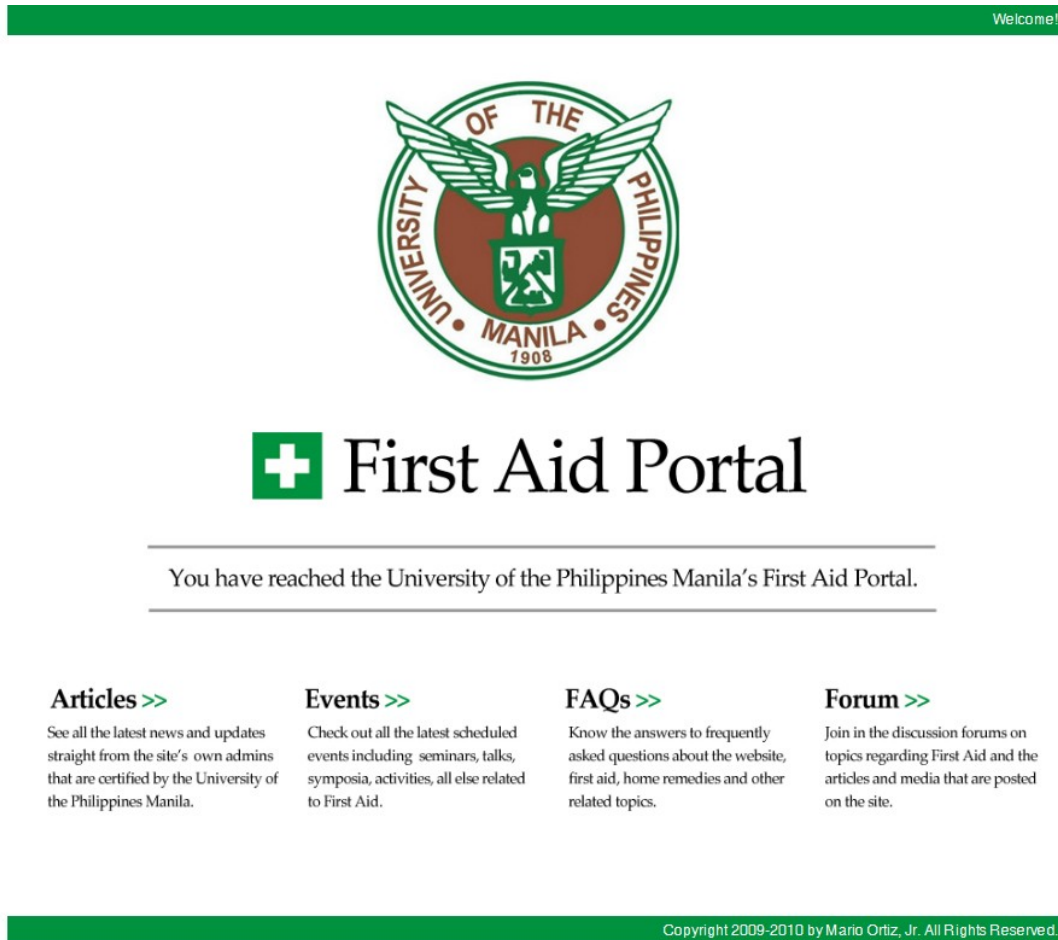

Fig. 15 Online Home Remedy and First Aid Portal Homepage

The user can click on any of the four links on the homepage to proceed to the area: Articles, Events, FAQs and Forum. Clicking on Articles link leads us to the Articles Index.

Fig. 16 Articles Index

The index provides us with many options as to what to do next: view articles, search articles, sort the articles by name, domain or by poster. The index is paginated so that there won't be more than 10 articles in one page. We can view the articles by clicking the article's title or by clicking "read more." The view of the article shows us the article name above, followed by the domain and the poster of the article. Below, there is a sharing widget to share the link of the article to the popular bookmarking and social network sites like Digg, Facebook, Twitter and MySpace. It also shows the type (whether illness or injury), the description, the treatments and if available, picture and video. Fig. 17 shows us the article's view.

Excessive Coughing Posted in Respiratory by Mario Ortiz

Share |

TYPE: Illness

SYMPTOMS: coughing frequently, test symptom

DESCRIPTION: A cough is a sudden and often repetitively occurring reflex which helps to clear the large breathing passages from secretions, irritants, foreign particles and microbes. The cough reflex consists of three phases: an inhalation, a forced exhalation against a closed glottis, and a violent release of air from the lungs following opening of the glottis, usually accompanied by a distinctive sound.

TREATMENT: Take one tea spoon of pure honey and to it add a pinch of grounded white pepper. Regular usage of this 2-3 times a day for about 4-5 days will cure your cough. Honey when taken with black pepper will loosen the mucous and make you spit the mucus. This will be helpful in throwing the irritating substances of the trachea and help you in treating cough.

Regarding Administrators and Domain Experts, they have their own admin index where there are additional functions for the addition, deletion and updating of articles. However, the Domain Expert can only add articles in his/her domain while the Administrator has total control over all articles.

Clicking on the link "Events" brings us to the events index. Fig. 23 shows us the events index with the calendar interface. This calendar is highly interactive. Clicking "next" or "prev" links you to the calendar of the next or previous month, respectively. The current day is shaded in green, and the cell where the cursor is also shaded in green. Weekends are shaded in a darker grey. To view a certain event, we just click on the event name.

The event view shows us all the necessary data about a certain event. From the top we can see the name of the event, the domain it is posted in and the poster. Below that, we can see the exact event date and time, and some notes about the event.

As for the views for the Administrators and the Domain Experts, they are quite similar to the ones for articles (admin index, add, edit, and delete). However, a domain expert may only add an event that is within his/her domain, but the administrator has total control over all records in this table.

What are the health domain categories that are included in this website?
Domain categories are added in as long as there is a Domain Expert for each one. We try to cover as many domain categories as possible, but currently we have articles for Digestive, Respiratory, Common Infectious Diseases, Wounds, Burns, Insect and Animal Bites, Skin Infections and others are being added along the way.

For the administrative sections, it is also very similar to the previous sections with the same functions. Both Administrators and Domain Experts have their own admin index that is restricted for guests, and they can also add, edit and delete questions, but the Domain Experts can only post questions in their own domain.

The only user types for the main site are Administrator and Domain Expert. As such, they also have their own control panel with regards to their own profile, and in the case of the Administrators, with regards to all the registered users in the system. At the top-left of each Admin Index page is a link that leads to the user control panel. If a Domain Expert is logged in, the link only leads to their Edit Profile page.

Administrators have more control however. They can access a user index in which they can edit user data, add new Administrators or Domain Experts, and delete users from the system.

The last section of the site is the Forum. Here, discussions are conducted about the content posted in the site and about the subject matter in general. Guests can register to join in on the discussions and post messages to various topics. The forum also has dedicated message boards for every Domain Expert's domain. The one that serves as moderator is the Domain Expert for that domain. The forum also allows for various other features that are typical of most of today's forums including but not limited to administrator functionalities, polls, and others.

VII. Discussion

As a web based system, the Online Home Remedy and First Aid Portal possesses very many possible users. Therefore, the system was made with the users in mind. Guests can view all the articles and they are also able to share them using today's latest bookmarking and social networking trend. Another feature added for user-friendliness is the search option. Instead of sifting through very many records, users can conduct a full-text search to retrieve what they need quickly. Other features include pagination of articles and the ability to sort them. Guests can also view events in calendar view. This gives them a clearer view of the dates and events that are related to the subject matter of the system. To provide interactivity, there is also a forum set up so that they can register to join in on discussions pertaining to various topics within the subject of home remedy and first aid. They can also modify their account profiles for a more personal feel.

Domain Experts are the key users of this system. They are the ones who review, approve and post information like articles, facts and media before they are posted onto the site. Aside from controlling the information, they are also the moderators for each of their own message boards in the forum. Their duties include moderating posts and the posters to keep the order and make sure everyone follows the rules. As with the ordinary users, they are also able to edit their own profiles their liking.

The System Administrators of the system have total control over all the records and files that are stored and presented in the system.

VIII. Conclusion

The Online Home Remedy and First Aid Portal is a web based system that can be a useful tool in the education of people about the topic of home remedies, emergency care and first aid. The data posted within the system has been carefully reviewed and approved by a trustworthy expert designated by the University of the Philippines Manila. This is a very good guarantee to ensure that the information posted within is of high caliber, as opposed to other information about home remedies, first aid and emergency care posted in the vastness of the internet.

Because of this, it is very important that the end-users of this system are provided with the best web experience. As such, the interface is very clean and simple and the layout and flow of the system is easy to read and understand. This removes certain visual distractions from what the users are looking for, which is the content and information. The system is also easy to navigate providing links to numerous sections of the system. The user also has many options of finding what they are looking for. The indices of each section of the system all provide pagination and some even have sorting and search functions for convenience.

To ensure everything is always in working order, System Administrators are given full control over the whole system. They are in charge of maintenance and housekeeping. They have the ability to add, edit, delete and view all the records in the database.

(18, 23, 'Article', 'Chicken Pox. Illness. Low grade fever, a mild headache and weakness. A rash appears on the skin on the first day of the disease. This is in the form of tiny red spots on the skin, mostly on the upper back or chest. In more severe cases, a rash may appear on the face and lower extremities. The papules turn into blisters and finally become pustules and form scabs, which fall off. They come in successive crops, so that while some are drying, others are beginning to form. The skin clears after a few days and the child feels well again. The duration of this disease ranges from ten to twenty-one days but is usually between fourteen and seventeen days.. A bath of oatmeal is considered a natural remedy for relieving the itch due to chicken pox. This bath is prepared by cooking two cups of oatmeal in two liters of water for fifteen minutes. This mixture is then put into a cloth bag, preferably cotton, and a string is tied tightly around the top. This bag is allowed to float in a tub of warm water, and swished around until the water becomes turbid. Precaution should be taken to ensure that the bag is not torn. The child with chicken pox can splash and play in the water, making sure that water goes over all the scalds, while the pouch of oatmeal can remain in the tub .. . Common Infectious Diseases Expert. Common Diseases', '2010-04-03 15:21:08', '2010-04-03 15:21:08'),

XI. Acknowledgements

First and foremost, I'd like to acknowledge my family, especially my parents for providing me with the best education I had growing up. I appreciate all the hard work and sacrifices that they made to ensure that I have a bright future ahead of me.

Next I would like to thank all the professors and instructors that I had the pleasure of learning from all throughout my stay in university. Without their valuable experience and knowledge, I wouldn't be where I am today. I would like to give a special mention to my SP adviser, Doctor Vincent Peter Magboo for all the help and guidance he has provided, as well as to my SP revisions adviser, Ma'am Avegail Carpio for assisting me in finishing my SP documents.

Lastly, I would like to give a "shout-out" (2010 era slang) to my blockmates, classmates and all the friends that I have met during my 4 years in university. I spent every weekday (and sometimes weekends) with these guys and I am so glad that I got to spend it with them. One of the best four years of my life, and now it is coming to a close.
